In a quiet side street in Pesthidegkút, surrounded by a well-kept garden, this south-facing family house is available to rent. Through the large windows, the garden's greenery accompanies life in the living room, while the fireplace creates an inviting setting for long conversations. A leisurely weekend morning, dinner with friends or a quiet evening all find their place here.

The connection between the living room, dining area and kitchen encourages time together. Conversation can continue while dinner is prepared, and just a few steps from the table the home opens towards the garden. Warm timber cabinetry and glazed upper cupboards give the kitchen a welcoming, classic feel. Around the fireplace, light surfaces and garden-facing windows, the living room's elegance lies in natural light and harmonious details.

Four bedrooms leave room for personal space alongside family life. Children's rooms, a home office or a bedroom for guests can be arranged to suit your way of living. Three bathrooms make the morning routine easier, while the basement sauna and hydromassage cabin mean that unwinding after a busy day need not involve leaving home.

Among the neatly tended lawn and evergreens, it is easy to linger with a coffee or a book. This garden can become part of everyday life: breakfast outdoors, playing with the children, a quiet afternoon in the fresh air. The double garage makes daily arrivals and departures more convenient.

Pesthidegkút's leafy setting is complemented by nearby schools, shops and medical practices. Educational options include the Gustave Eiffel French School, Klebelsberg Kuno Primary and Secondary School, Gyermekek Háza and a Waldorf school, with the American International School also nearby. This home gives the family room to follow its own rhythm: afternoons in the garden, dinners together and the calm of returning home at the end of the day.
