In a quiet side street in Széphalom, this family house is available to rent, centred on a high, galleried communal space. Light entering through the roof windows and the openness between levels create a distinctive, airy atmosphere. The living room becomes a welcoming meeting place for the family and for a larger gathering of friends.

Warm timber cabinetry in the open kitchen makes the shared space feel inviting. Cooking can remain connected to family life, with preparations for a weekend lunch as much a part of time together as the meal itself. The contrast between higher and more intimate areas allows for different furnishing arrangements.

Five bedrooms provide space for working from home or guests as well as rest. Separate rooms allow study, work and relaxation to coexist within the family. The sauna has its own place in an unhurried evening, while the laundry room keeps household tasks apart from the living spaces.

The three-car garage is convenient for a family with several vehicles. Széphalom's residential setting includes access to the French School, Klebelsberg Kuno School and Waldorf education. The spacious layout leaves room for calm even when everyone is at home.
