This south-facing family house with panoramic views is offered for sale in a quiet side street in Budaliget. Curved steps defining the living room and a wall of books create an individual character that accommodates different moments of family life. A large gathering and an afternoon with a book can take place in the same home, in areas with their own atmosphere.

A separate study complements the kitchen and communal rooms. Varied interior-design features preserve the house's personality, while the furnishings can be adapted to the next owner's lifestyle. The panoramic outlook and southern orientation are defining qualities, evident in the everyday experience of its rooms.

Five bedrooms can accommodate guests or additional workspace alongside the family's own rooms. A fitness room provides an opportunity to exercise at home, and the garage adds practical convenience. The garden includes an outdoor swimming pool, with open-air space for relaxation and shared activities.

The plot's position and the quiet side street add value to time spent in the garden. Hungarian and international schools, including French and American options, support family life around Budaliget. The house offers space for different ways of living, from entertaining together to a private retreat.
