This south-facing family house with panoramic views is offered for sale in a quiet Budaliget side street. Alongside the living room, five bedrooms allow the home to adapt to the family's changing needs. Private rooms, a separate study or accommodation reserved for guests can comfortably complement the shared living space.

The panoramic position and southern orientation are important assets. The main living room can be the family's meeting place, while working from home, studying and resting each find room of their own. Even on a busy weekday, every activity need not revolve around a single room.

The garden includes an outdoor swimming pool, offering another possibility for shaping life outside. In the quiet side-street setting, time in the garden can become part of the family's daily rhythm, from leisurely mornings to weekends together. The building has Terranova thermal insulation and carefully considered interior finishes.

Educational options around Budaliget include Hungarian, French and American schools. Alongside shopping and transport links, the residential garden setting provides the backdrop to this home. The house offers room for a larger family or a variety of activities at home, with the shared living room retaining its central role in time spent together.
