In Máriaremete, a family house with a Mediterranean atmosphere offers spacious, personal accommodation. The generous living and dining areas form the centre of time together, while the island kitchen readily combines cooking with conversation. The book-lined study offers a different rhythm: a quieter place for concentration and work.

Five bedrooms and three bathrooms allow different arrangements even for a larger family. A walk-in wardrobe helps keep everyday life organised, while separate rooms ensure everyone can find a place of their own alongside shared activities. The accommodation can also make longer visits by guests more comfortable.

The covered terrace and garden pond are among the most personal details of the maintained 997 m² garden. A quiet breakfast or evening conversation can continue indoor life outside. There is also an indoor pool area; the photographs show an empty pool, whose technical condition and requirements for bringing it into use need to be established.

A double garage provides practical support, while Máriaremete's residential setting and Hűvösvölgy's connections link the home to city life. The house's appeal unfolds in its generous shared spaces, the calm of the book-lined study and garden life centred on the terrace.
