In Nagykovácsi, warm colours in the tree-facing living room create an inviting atmosphere from the moment you arrive. Beside the large window, garden greenery accompanies time together, while orange tones in the kitchen and dining area provide a friendly setting for family breakfasts. A white turned stair balustrade is a subtle, personal detail within this interior.

The house offers several shared spaces and separate rooms, allowing different family routines to find their place. A desk beneath a roof window suggests a quiet work corner, and the upper-level kitchenette complements life upstairs. Rooms opening onto the balcony also reveal distant green hills.

A corner bath and twin basins in the attic bathroom provide a comfortable setting for getting ready. The wide balcony and garden offer another kind of relaxation: among lawn, trees, shrubs and stepping stones, outdoor time has its own atmosphere. An afternoon together or a quieter morning can connect naturally to this garden.

Standing in an asphalted side street, the house offers tenants Nagykovácsi's green surroundings. International schools in the area and connections towards Hűvösvölgy provide the backdrop for family weekdays. Varied rooms, warm colours and the garden's presence create a more personal setting in which to settle for the longer term.
